The Arrival of the Great Eastern of Hammond Street.

HOW SHE WAS RECEIVED,

ARRIVAL OF THE GREAT EASTERN.

The mammoth monarch of the seas, which arrived off ady Book on Saturday morning last, came up to the city between ten and eleven o'clock yeste-day morning. thip was signalized very early on Saturday, and as soon as it became known in New York that the Leviathan was once more coming up the bay a goodly number of one collected in the vicinity of the Battery, and many more went to Staten Island to see her up. But as the tide wes running out time it was not deemed advisable over the bar, and it was therefore resolved to suchor her there for the night and to bring her up early next day. These persons who had down to Staten Island loitered about until seven clock in the hope that she would take advantage of the late tide, but darkness comed in and the ship still contied at anchor. There was, therefore, no remedy for all ands but to return to the city.

The people of New York have seen so much of the Great Eastern that her second arrival in these waters has produced little or no excitement among The original curiosity and enthusiasm of which she was the cause on her first arrival have completely disappeared. The people who flocked to Staten Island yester. were attracted thitherward by their desire for relaxation and recreation, and the crowds that visited the Batry went to witness the exercises and evolutions of our unteer militia more than to see the ocean monster. fer entracce into our bay yesterday was very different m that of her first arrival. There was a total bsence of the fleet of little steamers, sloops and schoeners that then hovered about her like so many swallows. She came up magaincently There were a few craft flitting about the iver, but they were of the class that we see there every People could not belp looking, with a delight akin der, on the noble ship, as she slowly steamed long; for, as the greatest accomplishment of naval engieering and skill which this century has seen, she can fail to receive the silent admiration of all who on of a solid fact, and velatile Americans are now nore concerned in the new steam gun, throwing five hunthrough her various stages of excitement, and now presents but few features to astoniah the progressive world.

The appearance of the vessel does not differ such from that which it presented menths Her long and dreary wintering has produced no flect upon her compact and powerful form, and the painter's brush has been effectually used to brighten her exterior works. The Spanish and Portuguese rigates, now off the Battery, fired salutes as the Great was coming up the bay, but it was doubtful whether they were meant for the approaching vessel r for the American flag on Governor's Bland.

The Great Eastern is commanded by Captain Thompson, longh the general impression was that Captain Carnegie, the royal navy, would have succeeded Captain Vine Hall. She bere the American flag at the main, and the half of her immense power. It is expected that she will be open for exhibition for a few days, and her future movements will shortly transpire.

If wishes were weapons, if the trumpet biast of Northern defiance could throw down the walls of every southern fort, then the campaign would, no doubt, be short enough. But this enthusiasm of the North only leads us to believe that a fierce and lusting struiggle may possibly be begun. The States faithful to Mr. Lincoln have now accepted the doctrine that secession is treason, and that the seceding States may legitimately be conquered and held by the victors. But the intelligence which reaches us from the South seems to show that the Confederate States are equally determined on maintaining their intruggle was in the possession of Fort Pickens and the City of Washington, and he planned his measures occordingly. The former commanded the harbor of Pensacola, and to a great extent, the commerce of the Guif of Mexico; while the occupation of the capital by the eccelers would not merely draw the border States into the new confederation, but almost necessitate the recognition of foreign Powers. It will be remembered that Gen. Scott went to Washington soon after the secession of South Carolina, and that he was frequently in conference with President Buchanan and his Cabinet, and subsequently with that of Mr. Lincoln. For many weeks past he has been engaged in fortifying the capital, but the Department of War had been so mismanaged by Gen. Flord that the City of Washington was comparatively undefended so late as the middle of March. Had a Southern army marched upon the city it was not in the power of the North to prevent its capture, but Gen. Scott was ded off the danger by drawing attention to Fort Sumter, causing the robel army to lie inactive in Charleston harbor while he matured his own plans. Fort Pickens was left comparatively undefended, in order that the army under Gen. Beauregard might continue to swell its ranks, and when at length the government at Washington from itself prepared to act, the secoders were induced to attack Major Anderson by Mr. Lincoln's threat to succor that officer, and by the appearance of ships of war off the harbor.

Hall. She bere the American flag at the main, and the British easign, blended with the St. Goorge's cross, at the peak. The good folks of Flushing, who were led satray by some of the papers, have suffered some disappointment. It seems that the Great Eastern cannot get along without disappointing tomebody or the other at some time or the other. It was very generally reported on Saturday that, instead of coming up the bay, she would come by way of Long feland Sound, and be on exhibition for some days in mot been carried out.

The ruture movements of the vessel have not yet been decided upon. She is consigned to Measrs, Griouell, Minturn & Co., and has come with ballast and passengers, the proper have began to inquire whether the Great Eastern well be chartered by our government. It is entire, and the latter making a titted to convey large bodies of troops with speed and safety short distances. She will, doubtless, come to her movements of the course of the day, Her second passage across the Atlantic has been an excellent one. Her making of a general factore may excent low the control of the contingistion of a general part of the control of the contingistion of a general part of the control of the contingistion of a general part of the control of the contingistion of a general part of the part of within a fortnight. From all we can learn we are led to suppose that they will show a further decrease to morrow. This falling off in the specie reserve at a time when there is no export demand for specie would be inexplicable, but for the outbreak of the war. Since 20th April nearly 20,000 soldiers have moved from New York and New England toward Washington. Nearly every man took some money in his pocket, and in almost it is highly probable that friends of the owners of this money are drawing it out and laying it by somewhere in order to guard against the risk of seizure. These are the reasons why the reserve lost three millions in the fortnight ending last Monday: they may continue to operate for some time. Hoarding will probably begin as soon as the character of the war is understood. The banks loans did not vary much last Monday from the previous statement: the last figures were $124,610,166. There has been an increase in the applications at bank during the past week, owing to the difficulty of negotiating paper in the street; and it is possible that the loans may to morrow show an increase in consequence. Money is very hard to get on mercantile paper. The best that is made goes at 7 for short, 9 a 12 for long paper; but very good names indeed are selling at 2 per cent a month. There have been but few failures during the week, and those mostly in the provision trade. The dry goods houses stand better than any one expected. Many of them who were in business with the West are receiving produce in payment of their claims.

Foreign exchange fell for the Wednesday steamer to about 104 for bankers' bills, but rallied after the steamer sailed, and closed yesterday at about 106. There are not many bills in market, and the moment the importers begin to buy bills, prices advance rapidly. Some more gold is on the way from Europe; but at present prices it is doubtful whether importations would not not a loss. Our cotton export is drawing to a close, and will shortly cease; then the supply of bills will not, in any event, be equal to the demand.

stock market during the past week and month: -

The feature of the market is the scarity of stock. The bears have oversoid almost everything, and one after another the leading stocks of the day have been cornered, to the vast inconvenience of the shorts. This is a game, however, which can only be temporary in its operation. It is contrary to common sense to suppose that the prices of fancy stocks, or worthless State stocks, can bo maintained while a civil war is waging throughout the country: bona fide holders should avail themselves of the market provided for them by the bears and sell without delay. After the first battle stocks of all kinds will be plenty enough and at much lower rates than those now current.
